Book was helpful -- No CD though its mentioned throughout bookBy BluCnvrblThe book does some have some good tips to follow; specifically if you are new to the leadership aspect of chairing the auction. I was disappointed with the absence of the CD that the book itself says is included, also, it advertises on the back cover a lot of "top 10" type lists, but the book really isn't formatted that way so that's a bit confusing. 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Worth the PriceBy James M. HersheyHad a lot of useful practical suggestions. The chapter on "Getting Donations" was very helpful for me. Definitely worth buying for a beginner and maybe even for an experienced auction organizer. 1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. okay bookBy C. SigismondiThis book was fairly helpful. It was missing the CD that was supposed to be included.

Every letter, document, task, job description and schedule needed to plan, organize and execute a successful silent auction fund-raiser. Written in an easy-to-read style by two women who've done and seen it all. FUN, FUNNY, and USEFUL!!

I laughed so much... these ladies KNOW the volunteer world and how to get people to deliver. Great insights. -- B. B. Bamberg, Sl. Lukes UMC, Houston, November 2004Truly captures the challenge... breaks it down so anyone can do a big event - even the first time out. -- Karen McCarver, Co-Chair Parent's Guild, St. John's School (Houston), September 2004VERY well organized. It spells it all out. I can't wait for my PTL President to read it. -- Alice McDonald, Early Childhood Education, Our Saviour Lutheran School (Houston), September 2004About the AuthorRuth McCurdy has been VP of Training for three major national staffing companies and has owned her own consulting practice since 1998. Her business sence has put her in demand to head up "way too many" committees, but as a result she knows where the land mines are and this book is your survival map! Linda Oppenheim has been on a "gillion" fundraiser committees and has been active in three churches, five schools, and a host of other organizations. With her "out of the box ideas" and "if it ain't fun, why do it?" attitude she keeps things moving towards the fundraising goal.
