It's shocking to believe that it goes on in small towns all over the United States. But it does. And all of us are burying our heads in the sand if we try to ignore it. It's not just sex trafficking either. Modern day slavery is still happening even when we believe that Abraham Lincoln put an end to slavery. As long as there is a demand for ultra-cheap labor and prostitutes, we will have human trafficking. Nita Belles suggests that the pimps, johns and perpetrators be prosecuted instead of their victims. Makes sense to me. Like several others who have posted their reviews, I read this book because it was part of the United Methodist Women's reading program. I'm recommending it to all my FB friends. 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Will also be on the lookout for it.

Though clear in exposing this evil, Belles words are always marked by hope. A book that is sure to change the lives of its readers and change how the church views and joins the fight against modern day slavery In Our Backyard.
