So you think a soup kitchen for the homeless would be a dismal place--full of the dregs of the earth, frequented by the outcasts of society--a place with no humor or joy? Then you need to experience Kathy's Fine Dining, a collection of anecdotes and vignettes about everyday occurrences in the church-run kitchen of Kathleen Lydia Takach Baughman, a resourceful woman whose faith and love have helped to feed the downtrodden for over a decade. When Kathy was first offered the job as the director of this Colorado charity, she was unsure of herself, but as time passed, her dedication and enthusiasm grew. And oddly enough, she found not only tragedy in this place, but humor, joy, and hope. Throughout it all, it is faith that motivates Kathy--faith in herself, in her wonderful volunteers, and most of all, faith in God.
