

[Read free] Key Concepts in Social Gerontology (SAGE Key Concepts series)

Key Concepts in Social Gerontology (SAGE Key Concepts series)

Judith E Phillips, Kristine J Ajrouch, Sarah Hillcoat-Nalletamby
ePub | *DOC | audiobook | ebooks | Download PDF

DOWNLOAD

READ ONLINE

#1327904 in Books 2010-03-31 2010-03-18Original language:EnglishPDF # 1 8.27 x .56 x 5.83l, .70 #File Name: 1412922720248 pages | File size: 77.Mb

Judith E Phillips, Kristine J Ajrouch, Sarah Hillcoat-Nalletamby : Key Concepts in Social Gerontology (SAGE Key Concepts series) before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Key Concepts in Social Gerontology (SAGE Key Concepts series):

0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Five StarsBy Kirk Allenperfect0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. textbookBy Donna DewarThe book met my needs and fulfill the texbook requirement. the book looks great and is brand new.Delivery was just in tim for the class.0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Five StarsBy Purplegirly7885Fast and accurate! Thank you!

Social gerontology is a new and dynamic field reflecting the increasing interest in aging across the world. This book provides a readily accessible guide to well established and contested issues, as well as new concepts emerging through cutting edge research in the discipline. The entries give concise, lucid knowledge on what constitutes the building blocks of social gerontology and sets out a clear review of the core concepts, both classic and emerging, in this subject area. Each concept is explored in terms of its history, application, usefulness to theory and research, and significance in practice.

I welcome this book's refreshing approach to developing an understanding of fifty major concepts being employed in social gerontology. Far from a dictionary, the concepts are portrayed as complex, and conflicting definitions and usages are both noted and evaluated. The joint UK-US authorship promotes a much needed international approach to the field something all too lacking in most American textbooks and theoretical articles. Each article includes a (necessarily selective) set of references, and cross-references to other concepts included in the book. Readers might enjoy a follow the cross-reference adventure, which will situate each concept in a set of related concepts at the same, a broader, or a narrower level. Moreover, the coverage and evaluation of the concepts is right at the current leading edge in a rapidly moving field.

Victor Marshall
Dept. of Sociology and Institute on Aging, University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill

I welcome this book's refreshing approach to developing an understanding of fifty major concepts being employed in social gerontology. Far from a dictionary, the concepts are portrayed as complex, and conflicting definitions and usages are both noted and evaluated. The joint UK-US authorship promotes a much needed international approach to the field--something all too lacking in most American textbooks and theoretical articles. Each article includes a (necessarily selective) set of references, and cross-references to other concepts included in the book. Readers might enjoy a 'follow the cross-reference' adventure, which will situate each concept in a set of related concepts at the same, a broader, or a narrower level. Moreover, the coverage and evaluation of the concepts is right at the current leading edge in a rapidly moving field.--

Victor Marshall

I welcome this book's refreshing approach to developing an understanding of fifty major concepts being employed in social gerontology. Far from a dictionary, the concepts are portrayed as complex, and conflicting definitions and usages are both noted and evaluated. The joint UK-US authorship promotes a much needed international approach to the field something all too lacking in most American textbooks and theoretical articles. Each article includes a (necessarily selective) set of references, and cross-references to other concepts included in the book. Readers might enjoy a follow the cross-reference adventure, which will situate each concept in a set of related concepts at the same, a broader, or a narrower level. Moreover, the coverage and evaluation of the concepts is right at the current leading edge in a rapidly moving field. (Victor Marshall)

About the Author
Judith Phillips is Professor of Gerontology at Swansea University and director of the Older People and Ageing Research and Development Network in Wales (OPAN Cymru). Judith is a qualified social worker and has worked in statutory residential and field settings, specialising in work with older adults. Following a geography degree at the University of Wales, Aberystwyth, Judith went on to study at Stockholm University, Jesus College Oxford and UEA, Norwich, where she worked as a researcher and a lecturer before joining the Centre for Social Gerontology at the University of Keele in 1993. She returned to Wales in 2004 to set up the Interdisciplinary Research Centre on Ageing (now the Centre for Innovative Ageing) at Swansea University. She is also currently the Director of the Research Institute for Applied Social Sciences at Swansea University.