Blanche Woolls : The School Library Media Manager, 4th Edition (Library and Information Science Text) before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised The School Library Media Manager, 4th Edition (Library and Information Science Text):

4 of 4 people found the following review helpful. informative bookBy Beth VanceAs an elementary school librarian, I found this book to be extremely helpful. I purchased this textbook for an online class I was taking at Ashford University. Topics covered everything a school librarian would need to know to be effective in their job. Some of the info was geared toward middle and high school libraries, but could be adapted for elementary. Overall, a very well written and informative book. The author really knows her stuff!The School Library Media Manager (Library and Information Science Text Series)2 of 2 people found the following review helpful. NEW EDITION AVAILABLE--BEWARE!By GeeBeef you are buying this for school, please check that this is the correct edition for your class. I had to "make do", because the campus bookstore incorrectly listed this version instead of the new one.0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. The perfect book for teaching the administration of school library media centers. After a brief history of the role of the media specialist, readers learn how to choose a credential program, how to find the requirements for working in each of the 50 states, what to do when looking for and choosing a job, and how to survive the first week in that new position. Chapters then expand on the challenges of the first week, introducing collections, facilities, personnel, and technology. Sections also cover: collaborating with teachers, how to write a proposal, and how to accept leadership responsibilities, including the role of a media specialist in the legislative process.This revision will update information and change some of the emphasis from previous editions, particularly in the areas of the role of the library media specialist in the teaching of reading, the assessment of student learning, the leadership role of the school librarian and the impact of new technologies on the management of the library media center.

From School Library JournalThis updated volume is a good choice for introductory library school courses and can be consulted as a reference, especially by library media specialist students for information about how to choose a position. The 15 chapters and appendixes cover advocacy, collection development, curriculum support, facilities, instruction, leadership, and technology. Several pages also address AASL's Standards for the 21st Century Learner. Each chapter ends with references and exercises highlighted in gray-shaded boxes. The activities are carefully crafted, but the book lacks a sufficient number of exercises that focus on instructional technologies such as online pathfinders, and professional communication tools such as LM_Net and blogs, of which students may not yet be aware. Despite the limitations, this is a valuable resource.Caroline Geck, Newark Public Schools, NJ Copyright Reed Business Information, a division of Reed Elsevier Inc. All rights reserved. "This book has excellent advice and examples for the new and mid-career school media center specialist. It is highly recommended for its organization, simplicity of language but thoroughness of topic, and coverage that is relevant to today's problems and issues." - Collection ManagementAbout the AuthorBlanche Woolls is director and professor emerita, School of Library and Information Science, San Jose State University, past president of the AASL and IASL.
