Robert M. Emerson, Rachel I. Fretz, Linda L. Shaw : Writing Ethnographic Fieldnotes, Second Edition (Chicago Guides to Writing, Editing, and Publishing) before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Writing Ethnographic Fieldnotes, Second Edition (Chicago Guides to Writing, Editing, and Publishing):

3 of 3 people found the following review helpful. A Great Reference for Qualitative Research Fieldnotes and More!By Jessica WardWriting Ethnographic Fieldnotes, 2nd Edition, was a major asset in providing me the necessary knowledge and skills required for writing, editing, and publishing a successful dissertation. I was capable of following accepted approaches to qualitative social research and applying them in a manner that was significant in writing my fieldnotes.3 of 3 people found the following review helpful. super helpful.By GillI wish they talked less about grounded theory and more about applying theoretical frameworks and a priori propositions in the analysis section. Otherwise, super helpful.0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Five StarsBy Kim HainingVery dry read but it gets the point across.

"Ideal for the novice field researcher trying to muddle through the messy job of recording experiences." (Harvard Educational Review, on the first edition) "I find [this book] pervaded with such on-target common sense about the ethnographic enterprise, and in particular with strategies to introduce this method to new recruits, that I recommend it highly to all who teach fieldwork." (Contemporary Sociology) "There is a tremendous amount of good advice for anthropological ethnographers in this book." (American Anthropologist) "A wonderfully instructive and useful piece of work. It will prove to be of considerable assistance as a text in both graduate- and undergraduate-level courses." (Journal of Contemporary Ethnography)"About the AuthorRobert M. Emerson is professor emeritus in the Department of Sociology at the University of California, Los Angeles. He is the author of Contemporary Field Research: Perspectives and Formulations, now in its second edition. Rachel I. Fretz is a lecturer in the Writing Programs unit at UCLA. Linda L. Shaw is professor in and chair of the sociology department at California State University, San Marcos.
